It is learned that about 90 more German prisoners of war will arrive at the Red Bridge Camp between Kinzua and Kane in the near future. The camp has room for this additional group of men and they will be used on wood jobs in the vicinity.

Red Bridge is one of the finest camps in this section and it was used for housing CCC workers, later conscientious objectors spent months in the camp and then the war prisoners were moved in. There are about 200 men at the present time and they have been engaged in wood cutting.

WELL CAMOUFLAGED

On the roof of the Times-Mirror building a night owl has made her home and has just hatched out two lousy babies. The owl has nested on this roof for the past two years. She laid her eggs back of an empty milk bottle amid the gravel on the roof. Since the little ones have been hatched out she has moved them. The feathers of the bird make a wonderful camouflage and the bird and its little ones are hard to see against the gravel on the roof. Another of the owls has its home atop the postoffice building.

Retailers Over Quota But Are Still Selling "E" Bonds

The 43 bondsellers among the retailers of the city have done a job of which they may well be proud and the quota set for the retail stores has been passed. On Saturday four more banners were presented—to the Bert Shop, Betty Lee, J. A. Johnson's clothing store and the S. S. Kresge store—by the committee in charge.

The quota set for the retailers was $149,511 and so far they have rung up sales of $164,938.225. After today there are only five business days left in which to push the sale of bonds. Six of the merchants have no credit as yet, but it is assumed that the bonds pledged in their stores have not as yet been picked up by the buyers. It has been suggested that the goal be boosted to $200,000 and every effort will be made to reach that figure.

Branch Has Unusual Experience

Headquarters of the 27th "Tokyo Express" Infantry Division in the Pacific is authority for the following communication which will be of interest to many friends of the young Warren officer mentioned:

"Drawing fire from Jap AA gunners while flying behind their lines is bad enough—but when it starts coming at you after you're back on your own side of the fence, it's rather confusing to say the least."

These were the sentiments of twenty-five year old First Lieutenant Edward M. Branch, Jr., of Warren, Pennsylvania, flying as an air-ground observation pilot with Brigadier General Charles "Green Hornet" Ferrin's famed 27th Division Artillery which saw action on the bitterly contested southern Okinawa front.

On one route fire mission, Lt. Branch, accompanied by fire-control observer 1st Lt. Thomas J. Smith of Orinda, California, encountered a situation which changed the nature of the flight from "routine" to "unusual". Having successfully completed their mission over the Jap lines, Lt. Branch started back toward the piper-cub strip several miles behind the American lines. Just before reaching the landing strip, Lt. Smith, at the radio controls, received a message from the operations officer at the field requesting observation for evidence of any activity by the remaining elements of a Jap amphibious force that had successfully landed under cover of darkness in an area adjacent to the landing strip the night before.

Accordingly Branch brought the cub down to 400 feet for better visibility. No sooner did they arrive over the area in question when blasts from cleverly hidden Jap 50 cal. machine-gun positions below began sizzling about the tiny cub. Lt. Branch immediately nosed the plane upward and headed out to sea away in an attempt to escape the fire and bring the cub safely back to the field from another direction.

After landing, both officers were relieved to learn that the plane had not been hit, but Lt. Smith jokingly added, "It certainly left no doubt in our minds that there was still a bit of mopping-up left to be done in that area. This being fired at your own lines is something new to me!"

Lt. Branch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Branch, 8 East Third avenue, Warren, worked for the Pennsylvania state highway department before coming into the service. He also saw action at Eniwetok and Saipan prior to his participation in the current operation.

IS SERVING IN CONVERTED HOSPITAL

2nd Lt. Regis K. O'Leary, of Clarendon, is hospital dietician, in the modern medical center of the 43rd General Hospital which army engineers have evolved from a deserted French sanatorium near Aix, France. In eight large buildings and 30 prefabricated wards spread over 170 acres of land, medical miracles are a matter of course. The hospital's operating room is comparable to the best in the United States. All types of sickness and combat wounds are treated at the hospital, but soldiers requiring long periods of attention are reclassified and sent to another zone.

Pennsylvania Club Formed In Calcutta

From Calcutta, India, comes the news that "a bit of Pennsylvania" more than 10,000 miles from home is the newly organized Pennsylvania Club of the CBI, which boasts a membership of 79 servicemen from the Keystone state and was created to "foster a lasting friendship, enriched by service of country, among Pennsylvanians serving in the India-Burma and China theatres."

Robert Anderson, of Warren, is listed as the only local man so far enrolled. Servicemen of the army, navy and air force instigated the organization of the club, which is open to all members of the U. S. forces and civilians serving overseas in connection with the war effort. Considerable interest has been aroused in the two theatres and the club has received numerous membership applications from army men stationed in the three countries.

Many first members of the club are service of supply troops stationed in Calcutta and engaged in the moving of supplies from the port to forward bases.

FROM OVERSEAS

Pvt. Leonard M. Swanson, son of Mrs. Charlotte Swanson, 1512 Pennsylvania avenue, east, is home on 30-day furlough after 18 months of overseas duty. He wears four gold battle stars for combat on Guam and the Philippines with the 76th Tank Battalion.

IN GROUP GIVEN SECOND CITATION

Sgt. Archie K. Campbell, 21, son of W. H. Campbell, 306 Laurel street, is with the 324th Fighter Group which operated from an advance base in France and has received a second Presidential Citation for two action-packed days in Italy last May during the Fifth Army's breakout from Cassino. The citations credits the unit with displaying "such conspicuous gallantry and professional skill in attacking extremely hazardous targets as to set it above and apart from other units performing similar operations in this engagement."

Service Unit Of 112th Is Given Citation

For its outstanding devotion to duty in the performance of exceptionally difficult tasks during military operations in Normandy, Luxembourg and Belgium, the Service Company of the 112th Infantry Regiment has been awarded the Meritorious Service Unit Plaque by Maj. Gen. Norman D. Cota, commander of the 28th Division. Included in the service company's personnel is Pfc. David Whyte, of Corydon, truck driver. Members of the unit, whose job it was to keep the front line fighting troops equipped with ammunition, food and other vital materials, were cited for "their high standards of discipline and their efficient performance of duty in spite of fast-moving situations and difficult operational conditions."

Probably one of the most complex situations ever faced by the unit during its long trek through western Europe and into Germany occurred during the Germans' mid-winter Ardennes offensive. The 112th, in the line receiving the first brunt of the well-matched assault, consumed ammunition at a prodigious rate, and it fell to the service company to maintain supply lines to more than 4,000 men spread over a five-mile front. Trucks shuttled day and night to bring the much-needed ammunition and rations to men who often were almost encircled by infiltrating Germans.

In the same operation, over 1200 gallons of gasoline were hauled forward each day to fuel the hundreds of jeeps, trucks and armored vehicles involved in the Bulge battle. The service company's maintenance of a continuous flow of supplies was largely responsible for the regiment's subsequent participation in the offensive that helped seal off the Bulge.

Warrant Officer Thomas R. Brian, Ridgway, assistant supply officer, estimated that from the time the 12th Division landed in France last July to hit the Germans near St. Lo and map shut the Falaise Gap, the service company had re-equipped the 112th Regiment four times over.

Lt. Mitchell Had Part In Liberation

2nd Lt. Harold J. Mitchell, of Bear Lake, now stationed with a photographic reconnaissance squadron of the Fifth Air Force, was one of the pilots who actively participated in the campaign for the liberation of the Philippines.

Lt. Mitchell enlisted in the Army February 20, 1943, and for a time was with the Coast Artillery at Fort Eustis, Va. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Force August 4, 1944, at Mather Field, Sacramento, Calif. He left the States in December, 1944, and joined his present squadron in February of this year.

Lt. Mitchell's contribution to the Philippine campaign consisted of long-range photographic reconnaissance of heavily defended air-dromes, shipping and ground force. He flies a converted P-38 in which aerial cameras replace the conventional fighter armament. The lieutenant is a graduate of Lottsville High school, and was the salutatorian of the class of '42. Before entering the Army he was engaged in farming with his parents, who reside near Bear Lake.

Sgt. Gordon Has Fifth Star

Four times previously awarded battle participation credit for troop carrier sorties on the western front, S/Sgt. Lawrence E. Gordon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Gordon, 1322 Pennsylvania avenue, west, has won his fifth bronze battle star, significant of service in five major campaigns in the European theatre of operations.

Climaxing its previous aerial operations St. Gordon's organization, the 437th Troop Carrier Group, made history in the Rhine airborne assault at Wesel, Germany, by being the first Troop Carrier unit to fly a double glider tow formation into combat. The 437th has performed Troop Carrier missions in the areas of Normandy, southern France, Rome-Arno, northern France and Germany. It was cited for its successful fulfillment of airborne drop operations on D-Day in Normandy.

Sgt. Gordon entered the service at Erie in July, 1943. Before that he was a welder with Struthers-Wells.

OPA TO Keep Finger On Car Distribution

Anticipating an increased market in used cars, trucks and motorcycles, the Pittsburgh District of the Office of Price Administration has moved to exercise more stringent supervision in this field.

Trying to avoid raising the hopes of those in the market for new cars, but who may be forced to depend upon used cars until the automotive market regains normalcy, the new plan of the OPA calls for registration by August the first of all warranted used car dealers.

Under the plan adopted by the automotive panel of the OPA, each dealer in used cars, in order to qualify as a warranted dealer, must submit to specific regulations to be filed with the Pittsburgh District office, who will pass on the application before issuing a warranted license.

By this method it is hoped that those who have been circumventing the regulations now in force may be brought under closer scrutiny of the board to insure used car purchasers some guarantee as to the condition of automotive equipment being purchased.

The examining panel is composed of volunteer members of the automotive industry who hope to be able to regulate sale and purchase of used cars to the extent that the purchaser will be guaranteed as to condition of equipment and sale price.

After filing of application for a warranted dealer license, the board will conduct its own investigation to determine eligibility of the dealer to conduct business in accordance with the new provisions.

Government Wants Unused GI Apparel

Government laundries, dry-cleaning plants and tailor shops holding unclaimed government issue clothing are urged to return the garments to the army to combat a critical shortage of GI apparel. Third Service Command officials advise.

Discharged servicemen who still have khaki wear in the closet at home were also asked by the service command to send the clothing to the quartermaster officer at the nearest Army post. Cotton khaki shirts, trousers and garrison caps are particularly scarce items but wooden garments of all kind will also be needed.

Cleaning establishments will be paid their regular service charges for work done on the clothes, unless they hold a government contract, and the Army will make collection arrangements.

ANCIENT NORTH POLE STAR

When the Pyramids were being built 5000 years ago, Thuban, a star you probably never heard of, was the Pole Star, but because of the earth's "wobble" it is now far from the celestial pole, halfway between the bowl of the Little Dipper, and the middle star in the Big Dipper's handle.

Letters to the Editor

July 21, 1945

Editor Warren Times-Mirror:
I am enclosing a clipping taken from the Cleveland Plain Dealer which I think will be of interest to the general public.

Yours truly,
A Reader.

Editor Plain Dealer—Sir: I read in your paper on June 16 the "Views of Farm News" by John C. Davis. He said we have 20 per cent more hogs, corn, wheat and beef cattle than in any time in peace. That's the biggest lie I ever heard in any newspaper.

I own a 65-acre farm in Bear Lake, Pa. For 15 years I farmed, and I can tell Mr. Davis that people in this country will starve this winter, and it's the OPA and this administration to blame when people in this country go hungry.

In July, 1943, I asked the OPA at Warren, Pa., for more gasoline to finish my haying and didn't get it, so I left 6 acres of hay rot. I asked for a pair of rubber boots to clean my barn. They sent me a bunch of applications. I filled them out, but no boots.

In February, 1944, I had 5,000 eggs in my house but could get no cases to ship them, so I sold my 300 laying hens for a dollar apiece. I had 28 hogs, and when OPA set a ceiling price nobody wanted to buy my pigs so I sold the hogs. I sold my 12 cows and everything. Now I am working in Cleveland. Four of my neighbors sold all their stock and are working here. Sixty per cent of the farmers have stopped raising chickens and hogs and are working in the shops because it didn't pay to raise 14 to 16 hours a day for a bunch of racketeers.

I have a neighbor who used to raise 8,000 chickens. Now he works in the foundry and has only 30 chicks for himself. Then I have two neighbors who used to raise over 100 hogs. Their boys were drafted into the army, and now the neighbors have only three hogs for themselves and they are working in the shop. It is easier than farming.

There are a million cases like that. There won't be any oats and barley nor much corn this fall, as rain and cold weather have killed much of it. I call this God's punishment. A few years ago our big smart guys used to raise corn, wheat and wheat under and kill mother cows. Now they wish they had them.

This is the best and richest country in the world. We have everything here but brains. I am willing to take Mr. Davis or any other newspaper man and show him empty houses and beautiful farms standing idle. Farmers got tired of being robbed, so they left for the city where life is much easier.

I have a neighbor who has 30 head of cattle, mostly milking cows, four horses and only one son. Two weeks ago he went to a draft board in Warren, Pa., and told them he needed his son on the farm. The draft board told him not to talk too much or they would put him in the army, too.

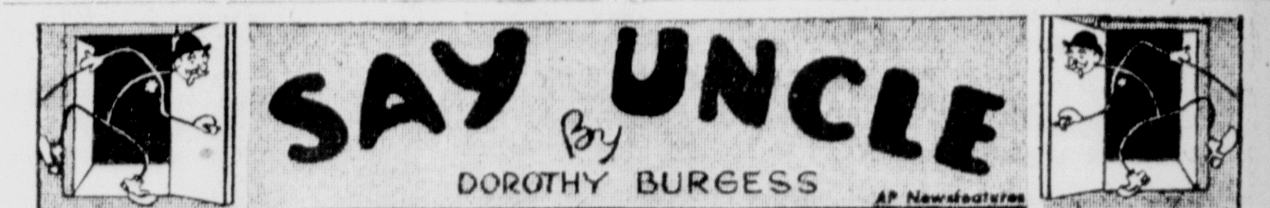

So the poor boy went to the army and my neighbor is selling his stock out and will only keep enough for himself. I don't blame him. I served 30 months in World War I, 11 months in Belgium and France and in the army of occupation in Germany, but I'll vote for a Chinaman before I vote for a member of the Democratic party. Cleveland. ELMER HEFFER.

THE BULLET ALSO HAD A NAMEPLATE ON IT

Grand Island, Neb.—(P)—During the Yanks' heading cleanup of Germany, Pvt. Dale W. Hongermeier caught a glimpse of a house whose nameplate bore his mother's maiden name.

Shortly afterward he was shot in the shoulder. An exchange of letters with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Hongermeier of Grand Island, established that he was wounded in action near his mother's birthplace.

Everybody reads the Times-Mirror.

Chapter 7

"It's incredible," Dr. Bliss said, handing the article back to Magnolia. "It's more serious than I thought. Tell your mistress I'd like to see her."

"Yes, huh? I'll go down and fetch mah poor baby."

"And Magnolia—" he stopped her.

"Yes, huh?"

"I want her to think I just dropped by accidentally, to say hello. Understand?"

"Yes, huh. I don't think mah baby am in no condition to 'preciate mah callin' you to come over here."

"And Magnolia—" he stopped her again.

"Yes, huh?"

"I think for the time being, it would be an excellent idea if we play along with her. You know, pretend we see Uncle Louie, too."

"If acceptin' dat Uncle Louie will make mah baby well, he am accepted. What's mo', I'll cook him al de prunes he wants—even though he don't actually eat 'em."

"Good girl, Magnolia."

THEN to their surprise, the basement door flew open and Madge appeared. The doctor noticed how radiantly happy she looked as she came toward him.

"Fred!" she called gaily. "How nice to see you!"

"Hello, Madge. Just thought I'd drop by." Then he took both her hands and looked her over from head to foot. "You look extremely well."

"And why shouldn't I?" she laughed. "She stumped him for a moment, then he forced a laugh. "No reason why you shouldn't—no reason at all. Don't tell me you've been taking those vitamins I prescribed?"

"You won't be jealous?" she teased.

"Well," he said playfully, "the green-eyed monster has been known to raise havoc even in my profession, but I guess I can take it. Who is he?"

"Uncle Louie!" she beamed.

A strange sound came from Magnolia, as though she had swallowed a walnut with its shell on, but Fred didn't bat an eyelash, as he continued to play along with Madge, magnificently.

"Uncle Louie?" he pondered aloud.

"He's John's uncle," she explained. "The sweetest, darlingest, little old man you could ever meet."

"I'd like to meet him," said Fred, with assumed seriousness.

"Some other time, Fred. He's terribly busy right now working on his formula. Which reminds me" (she turned to Magnolia who was a bundle of jangled nerves); "go into the kitchen, Magnolia, and get me a measuring cup."

"A measuring cup?" she asked weakly.

"That's what I came up for, Uncle Louie wants it."

"Yes, 'um."

Madge shook her head as she watched the mournful Magnolia trudge heavily down the long hallway, then she turned to the doctor.

"She's the one who needs vitamins," she said.

FRED, anxious to get back to the subject of Uncle Louie asked, "Tell me more about this formula. It sounds very interesting."

Madge's face lighted up. "It is! Of course, I don't know all the details, but Uncle Louie guarantees it will absolutely revolutionize the entire universe."

"Really?" he said.

"And, in some way or other, it's going to bring John back to me!"

"Oh, is John away?"

"Yes," said Madge, tossing it off lightly. "He left me for another woman."

"Really?" That's all Fred could say, for his little game was on the verge of collapsing, and he wondered how much longer he would be able to keep up the pretense.

"You are!" she asked hopefully. "What you-all goin' to do, Doctor?"

"I'm going to drive into town and find your Master John."

Magnolia clapped her hands and sang out, "Praise de Lord! Praise de Lord! Hallelujah!"

ON DISMEMBERING GERMANY

"I do not want to discourage German thrift and science but I want to keep it from being geared to a war machine again."

These words from Bernard Baruch come pretty close to summing up the German view of those who would steer a course between the extremes of dismemberment and complete industrial destruction and any attempt to rehabilitate the Reich by turning it over to "good Germans."

Baruch would dismember German industry. To those who fear the effect of such a move on European economy he says in effect that the German share of Europe's export business can be produced in friendly countries with both manpower and machines which would otherwise be a German war potential.

He would permit the Germans to produce only enough to meet immediate consumption. And that, presumably, at not too high a level.

It seems obvious that Germany is going to be occupied for years, says J. M. Roberts, Jr., Associated Press foreign affairs analyst. There is no sign of any revival from within. For a long time, then, Europe's economic interests are going to be in more or less of a pool. It would seem of little moment, whether the industries are located in Germany or to the west or east.

For years all German production has been devoted to war and her own immediate needs. What little she has exported has been to nearby subjugated or coerced countries in grudging return for essential war imports.

For even longer Germany has produced approximately 90 per cent of her own food. With the expected breaking up of large estates, particularly the junker lands, and by application of some of the manpower which has gone into industry, she could produce it all.

This remains true, even if several million men are assigned to reconstruction projects in other countries. What she did during the war (during which the western Allies alone encountered more than 10,000,000 men in the armed forces who were not participating in production) is sufficient evidence of that.

This need not mean that Germany is to be held in slavery. Only that she shall be quarantined, then fumigated by such educational means as fit the case, and finally readmitted to society if and when she fully adopts the idea that a decent existence alongside her neighbors is better than constant, fruitless struggle for hegemony.

JOB FOR GENERAL IKE

The cheers that greeted General Eisenhower's homecoming had scarcely died down when somebody proposed that the general be made Secretary of State. That's a typical reaction, of course. A people's admiration for the triumphant but wear hero often manifests itself in a desire to honor him by meddling him with more work.

General Eisenhower has accomplished what is perhaps the most tremendous job of its kind that any man ever tackled, and has engineered one of the world's greatest victories. Perhaps the kindest thing his countrymen could do for him after that would be to let him sit down and catch his breath. And yet it's easy to see the sense as well as the adulation in proposing the general for an important government position of some sort.

Any man that can do the military job that he did, take commands as well as give them, maintain peace and harmony in a staff of contrasting, temperamental, international generals, talk the eloquent and determined Winston Churchill out of some of his most cherished plans, make some of history's most fateful decisions and still keep grinning, receive four nations' top honors and still keep his modesty, make a speech that Londoners compared with Lincoln's Gettysburg Address—any man who can do all these things is just inviting more work for a country which not only honors him but needs him.

County officials and state police were confronted with another situation Saturday evening that proved again the urgent need of having cars used in county-wide investigation equipped with radios. During the inquiry into the accident in Paige Hollow road it was found necessary to call back to Warren to summon an undertaker, and the telephone communication was such that the message had to be relayed. A radio in the car of the deputy sheriff of state police would have facilitated matters greatly and saved a lot of time.

One of the editorial features certainly rolls into Gardier Johnson, the California statesman in a way not to be one bit misunderstood. It's so good, here 'tis:

What's got into the folks back home is ever body a thinkin' and a actin' the way they are in California? Hope not cuz if they is I'm gonna stay out here and rot of fungus. Did you know that Assemblyman Gardiner Johnson of California authored a bill which would permit a married woman who has a child by another man other than her husband to arrange for its adoption by other persons without notifying her spouse? Furthermore, I understand that the bill passed the Assembly and has been sent to the Senate. Migawd, Maw, ain't nothin' sacred? Thet man is tryin' to pass a law to make adultery legal. Guess he ain't ever heard of the ten commandments. Johnson sed the bill was designed to prevent a mother's indiscretions from "forever damning and beclouding the future of a helpless infant." Might as well make the houses of ill repute legal whair the 4Fs and draft dodgers kin breed our women for us. One Chief was so mad when he heard this news that he said if

When I was in Quebec in February I began to see the outlines of the social problem of Canada; the human stresses and strains that operate in that vast sprawling country. Through the eyes of Abbe Paul Gosselin and his associates, and briefly from the lips of His Eminence, the Cardinal, I saw the French-Canadian picture. It was in effect a backward trip into the eighteenth century. It was as if one had taken a train in San Francisco intending to go straight through to New York. But at Cleveland the train suddenly stopped and, instead of steaming ahead, began incomprehensibly to back. Every minute you expected it to resume its forward rush. But it did not stop backing 'til it got clear back to Chicago. The train would be called the 20th Century Limited or Progress-As-We-See-It.

I began, I say, to see the outlines of that problem. Just now I have finished a novel which fills in those outlines in a most satisfactory way. It is "Two Solitudes" by Hugh MacLennan, recently published by Duell, Sloan and Pearce. In it the author, a young Canadian thirty-eight years old, visualizes and dramatizes the Dominion dilemma with great understanding and accuracy.

Athanase Tallard is an enlightened French-Canadian aristocrat living in the parish of Saint-Marc-des-Erables. He is a heavy contributor to Father Beaubien's huge new church but his ancient family, first citizens of this farming community, has a tradition of marked anti-clericalism. He is one of a long line of distinguished Tallards, one of whom had always sat in Parliament at Ottawa. He believed that the English and French elements should cooperate more closely. In this he meets the stern opposition of Father Beaubien and of his own son, Marius, a violent French-Canadian chauvinist, who hates everything English and Protestant.

The mother of Marius, whose life had been solely a pious preparation for Heaven, has died years ago, and Athanase has married Irish Kathleen, mother of his small son, Paul. Athanase believes the French should develop their own natural resources. He therefore proposes to join McQueen, a self-made Ottawa financier, in building a local factory. Father Beaubien opposes and threatens Athanase who, in a flood of anger, leaves the Catholic faith and becomes a Presbyterian. But Athanase is now at odds with his French neighbors and so no longer valuable for public relations purposes to McQueen and his English associates. In his Parliamentary career, too, he is defeated through the activities of Father Beaubien. Thus this intelligent man who has tried to bring the French and English together, dies in poverty, having been repudiated by both.

The rest of the book, which might almost be a separate novel in itself (and perhaps should have been), is the story of the son, Paul. In him, with his French father and Irish mother, the two antagonistic Canadian strains are joined. He had first been educated in the Catholic parish school. Then, when his father became Presbyterian, he had gone to a private school for English boys. After his father's death and Kathleen's remarriage, he had been jobless in the world of the depression. How he meets his problems, how he feels about Canada and his countrymen, his spiritual conflicts, are understandingly described.

The book contains some very well-drawn characters. McQueen, the votary of the goddess, Success; his associates, the financiers who rule Canada. Captain Yardley, the heretic, who comes to live in Saint Marc and endears himself to his Catholic neighbors, a retired sea captain.

Captain Yardley has come to understand and love the beauty of fragile things after a lifetime of roistering adventure; has taken up the study of Greek at the age of seventy-five. Then there is the shabby and emotionally incontinent Marius, determined to make trouble for everyone who does not share his violent hatred of "les Anglais." The indolent, sensuously beautiful Kathleen, thirty years younger than her husband. The storekeeper, Polycarpe Drouin. There is finally the lovely, intelligent Heather whose mother, Captain Yardley's daughter, has married into the great Montreal family of General Methuen. Heather feels the same conflicts within herself that Paul has been fighting. Together they find a certain happiness and stability as the new war breaks out in 1939 and Paul enlists.

This is a somber, measured, and beautiful novel. Its rich, satisfying descriptions of the Canadian land; its sincere statement of the emotional problem; make it a book not soon forgotten. The author was born in 1907 in Nova Scotia, educated at Halifax Academy and Dalhousie University, and at Oxford as a Rhodes scholar. Here he was a member of Oriel College. He later received his Ph.D. from Princeton. In 1941 he published "Barometer Rising," and received a Guggenheim Fellowship which enabled him to write "Two Solitudes." Let me quote the last paragraph of the book:

"Then, even as the two race-legends woke again remembering ancient enmities, there woke with them also the felt knowledge that together they had fought and survived one great war they had never made and that now they had entered another; that for nearly a hundred years the nation had been spread out on the top half of the continent over the powerhouse of the United States and still was there; that even if the legends were like oil and alcohol in the same bottle, the bottle had not been broken yet. And almost grudgingly, out of the instinct to do what was necessary, the country took the first irrevocable steps toward becoming herself, knowing against her will that she was not unique but like all the others, alone with history, with science, with the future."

Mister Johnson has some service man's wife in trouble. We heard that a letter introduced into the debate by a San Diego attorney said that Army and Navy officials favored the bill. It's kinda hard to believe that and if it's true thair ain't ever gonna be any respect thair. Maw thair ain't nothin' thets happened in the states since we cum out here that has the boys as upset as much as this man's bill. Why iffen these boys was in the states I think they'd actual mutiny and go and tar and feather thet skunk Johnson. We're hopin the bill is defeated in the Sen. (Turn to Page Eight)

DeLuxe Metal Has Dinner to Celebrate Its Unusual Record In Making Spars for Planes

The completion of the 2000th center panel spar for C-46 cargo planes for the Curtiss Wright Corp., by the DeLuxe Metal Furniture Co., was observed in a manner Saturday noon that will long be remembered by the 184 employees and officers in attendance, when a chicken dinner was served in the mammoth packing and shipping room of the plant in the west side.

Music for the occasion furnished by a group of musicians from the Warren High School band under the direction of Harry Summers, was very much enjoyed and appreciated as was evidenced by the generous applause that followed each number.

During the brief program that followed, in charge of H. J. Onions, vice president and general manager, a telegram was read from John H. Martin, signed by the Curtiss Wright organization upon the completion of your 2000th center panel spar. Your cooperation has been greatly appreciated and the interest displayed by your company has been a real help to the war effort. We extend heart-est wishes for your success in the future.

After reading the telegram Mr. Onions expressed his own personal gratitude for the loyalty and self-sacrificing service of the workers, reminding that it was only through their efforts and cooperation that the record had been achieved. Mr. Onions then introduced the following officials of the company: H. P. Stone, president; R. W. Steber, George Craft and C. W. Beckley, directors.

An extemporaneous speech that was not on the program but which provided considerable of a surprise was delivered in Italian by Bruno Zaffina, one of the laborers in the plant. Quite unexpectedly Mr. Zaffina arose to his feet and according to an interpreter expressed his appreciation "for the nice dinner, nice big shop, nice big boss and the nice superintendent they work for."

The work of preparing the dining room and serving the delicious meal was in charge of a committee with Mrs. William Duncan as chairman, who were highly praised for their excellent contribution to the success of the affair.

Following the dinner a group photograph was taken on the lawn to the east of the building by the Stokes studio.

Suggestions For Matching Your Sparse Sugar Rations

Smart consumers will learn how to use other sweeteners in place of refined sugar in recipes. Corn syrup and dextrose (which is corn sugar), because they have little flavor of their own, are most widely used as sugar substitutes, chiefly by bakers, candy makers and food manufacturers. When syrups and maple products are substituted for sugar, their differences must be kept in mind. Sorghum, molasses and corn syrup, for example, are less sweet than maple sugar, honey or sugar itself, and requires the use of 1½ times as much to get the same amount of sweetness.

In beverages, puddings, custard and sauces you can use corn syrup in place of sugar as the only sweetener. But you have to use twice as much to get an equally sweet product. When you use corn syrup, all the other liquids in the recipe should be reduced one-fourth.

In muffins, plain cakes, and drop cookies, corn syrup may be substituted measure for measure for sugar and the liquid in the recipe reduced one-third.

In sweet cakes and candy, you can replace one-fourth of sugar with an equal amount of corn syrup, but remember, when you use corn syrup, to cut down the other liquids one-third.

The amount of sugar that will be available for home canning is limited. The sweeter fruits can be put up in their own juices if the juice is extracted from the crushed portions. Many families will want to save sugar from their regular allowance for canning. To make this sugar go farther, use just enough syrup to make the fruit palatable. This may require cooking outside the jar and hot packing so as to draw the juice out of the fruit in order to have enough liquid to cover. Honey or corn syrup may be substituted for half the sugar without affecting the delicate fruit flavor.

In jams, jellies, preserves, and marmalades, sugar acts as a preservative and gives consistency to the product. You can accomplish the same end by using three parts of sugar to four parts of fruit instead of equal weights of fruit and sugar, as usual. This will also give you more of the natural fruit flavor. Honey, when available, may be used to replace half the sugar. It is not practical to make jellies entirely without sugar. In making preserves, corn syrup may be substituted for as much as half the sugar. But in jellies, jams, and marmalades, corn syrup can replace only one-fourth of the sugar. Since syrups contain water, you may have to cook slightly longer to get the same consistency as when using sugar alone.

Good sugar-saving rules to follow at all times are:

1. Serve cooked fruits hot to enjoy their fullest flavor and sweetness.
2. Save syrup from canned fruit to sweeten other fruit, pudding, sauces, or beverages.
3. A pinch of salt increases the sweetening power for sugar in cooked food.
4. Be sure all sugar is completely dissolved to get its full sweetness.

A pretty home wedding solemnized at 4:30 p. m. Wednesday, June 20, united in marriage Arlyene McLaughlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard McLaughlin, 20 Grant street, and James C. Menard, petty officer second class, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Menard, Prospect street.

Rev. Harold Knappenberger performed the double ring ceremony against a background of white flowers, ferns and palms. Eleanor Klinefister Knapp played the traditional wedding music and accompaniments for Lois Heald Flood, who sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin and chiffon in basque style, with sweetheart neckline, and long train edged with Chantilly lace. Her fingertip veil had matching lace and depended from a tiara of orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses and baby's breath and her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Camilla Fetterolf, matron of honor, wore a gown of blue chiffon with matching headress and carried an arm bouquet of Talisman roses and baby's breath. The bride's mother wore black sheer with pink rose corsage and Mrs. Menard wore a Talisman rose corsage with brown print.

Lavern DeVore was Mr. Menard's best man.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held for 30 guests. The all-white bride's table was centered with a three-tiered cake with miniature bride couple, flanked by silver candelabra. Serving was done by the Misses Lois Bogart and Joyce Anderson, intimate friends of the bride. Major A. J. O'Connor, home on leave, was the only out of town guest.

Following the reception, the couple left for Charleston, S. C., the bride wearing black accessories and a red rose corsage with a gray suit. The bride, graduate of Warren High School in the Class of 1942 and of Warren Conservatory of Music, is employed by the Bell Telephone Company. FORGERS LOSE 5-4 BATTLE TO WAGNER ALL-STAR CREW

Pittsburghers Score 3 Runs in Eighth Inning to Win; Forge Tallies Three Times in First

A three-run rally in the first half of the eighth inning yesterday at Wilder Field gave Honus Wagner's All-Stars a 5-4 victory over the National Forge baseball team before at least 700 fans, the largest attendance at Irvine this season.

The Forge, trailing 3-3 going into the last of the ninth sent one runner home but failed to score the tying run as the Stars emerged the winners.

Dick Hines held down the mound for the NFOs, giving up 13 well-scattered hits, walking but one batter, and fanning three. The locals blasted away at two pitchers, sending Cy Peffer to the showers in the last half of the fifth.

In the first inning, Johnny Pawk walked, followed by Emory Morrison's single. Both runners scored on a two-bagger by Harry Rosequist, who in turn tallied with the third score on Fred Gagliardi's one-base hit.

The All-Stars, featuring center-fielder Paul Wagner, former Pittsburgh Pirate and Brooklyn Dodger star, were scoreless until the third run after doubling and going home on a single by Kern.

The Forge had runners on the sacks in both the fourth and sixth frames, but couldn't manage to add additional tallies. The Wagnermen added their second score in the opening part of the sixth, Van Jura taking first on a fielder's choice, going to second on a single and one on another hit by Mutt Kerner, making the score, 3-2.

The Forgers lambasted pitcher Cy Peffer late in the fifth, having collected seven hits off the starter. Fred Gagliardi chalked up the best average for the locals with two hits and hit by a pitched ball in four tries. Natalie, Creola, and Morrison, each nabbing two hits.

The "fatal eighth" was a heart-breaker, the type of game that's hard to lose in any player's language.

Heyl opened the inning by popping out to Geigerich in center, but Van Jura singled and Meider doubled to put two men on base. Mutt Kern came up with his third single of the day to send two runs home, putting the Stars ahead, 4-3. Jester sent a hot grounder to Gagliardi, who threw wild to first allowing Kern to score with what turned out to be the winning tally.

Trailing by two runs, the Forge came back with enough strength in the final half of the ninth to score one run but couldn't send home a tying tally. Geigerich walked but was thrown out at second on Johnny Pawk's single's choice. Emory Morrison singled to send Pawk home with the fourth run but was caught in a double play with Rosequist to end the ball game.

On Thursday night at the State Hospital, the Emporium Sylvania Tubes come here for the Forgers' twelfth opponent of the year and on Sunday, the Oakmont outfit, recent 8-2 victors over Wagner's crew, come to Wilder Field.

Forgers Trip N. Y. All-Star Outfit, 5 to 4

The Forgers had a real test on their hands Friday night at the State Hospital, but through carefulness and good, old-fashioned baseball experience they managed to come through with a 5-4 win, their fourth in a row since they hit the victory trail against Belmonte.

Joey Nagle's N. Y. state All-Stars started out to do what they had successfully completed several All-Stars could have returned had it not been for two wild pegs by the New Yorkers in the eighth frame of the Friday meeting; the all weeks ago at the State and home boasting two victories over the Forge.

In the second inning, the visitors annexed two runs to start on their way. "Ginny" Freeborough, hurling for the locals, stopped several more attempts in later innings with some excellent pitching, but spotty fielding behind him allowed Jamestown added scores.

In the Forgers' half of the second, Andy Natalie crossed home plate for the first local run after he had walked, went to second on Fehlmann's single and home on an error by rightfielder Walker, who dropped a long fly ball by Johnny Pawk.

Two singles coupled with an error sent home the All-Stars' third and fourth tallies in the fifth, putting the Naglemen in front, 4-1.

The NFOs made it 4-2 in the last of the seventh when Andy Natalie scored again after taking a free pass. The big rally came in the final half of the eighth, the Forge adding three more tallies to put the game on ice.

McKinney led off in the eighth with a strikeout, but Creola was walked and went to third on Rosequist's single. Creola scored the third tally on Fred Gagliardi's single as Rosequist went to third and Gagliardi to second on the throwin. Andy Natalie was intentionally passed, which loaded the sacks, and up came Emory Morrison with only one out. "Rosey" stole home and was called safe when pitcher "Lefty" Pratt threw a wild pitch which allowed Gagliardi to score also, putting the Forge ahead, 5-4. With Natalie on third, Morrison hit a drive to third which caught both Natalie and Morrison for the second and third outs.

Jamestown went down in order in the ninth to give the locals their fourth in a row.

QUIZ

"But you've won 64 dollars—can't you think of anything to buy but Wheaties?"

You'll be s-o-r-r-y—if you don't buy Wheaties. Folks answer the breakfast-call in "64-dollar" time when they're headed for a big bowlful of milk, fruit, and Wheaties. "Breakfast of Champions." Remember Wheaties—next time you buy from your grocer.

My name is Dorothy Baker. I'm the "Yes Man" at Personal Finance Co. . . that is—I'm the one who likes to say "Yes" to requests for Personal Loans.

You see—I'm the manager of our office—the one who's responsible for building up our business. The more times I say "yes" to requests for loans—the more business we do. And since making Personal Loans of $25 to $250 or more is our ONLY business—that's mighty important to me.

Therefore, if you need extra cash at any time—whether a little for a short time or a lot for a long time—you can depend on my doing my best to say "yes" to you.

Next time you can use a loan give me a chance to say "Yes"—won't you? I'll consider it a favor. See me at Personal Finance Co., 216 Liberty St., second floor, over Lester Shoe Store. Phone 285.

Team Starts 1st Practice Tonight at 6:15

The newly-formed Warren baseball team starts its first practice session tonight at 6:15 on Russell Field, with the practices open for any baseball candidate in the section.

The field has been much improved by the efforts of the players who form the backbone of the team.

Joe Massa, Jim Rose, Bob Schussler, Mike Solock and Bill Martin are some of the more experienced leaders, with Ray Reed, Bill Massa, Don Gheres, Dave Lopez, Dean Whitaker, George Lucia, and Ed Wollaston, all who played high school baseball in the past season, also on the roster.

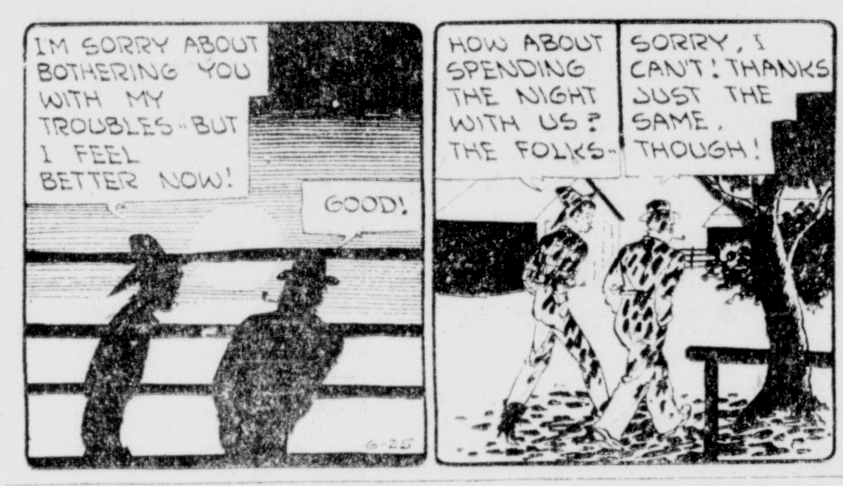

The purpose of the new team is to give the younger group more of a chance to play baseball under the right guidance. As soon as the leaders feel that the group has had sufficient practice, the first game will be played.

Permission has been received for the use of Russell Field by the new team.

Behind the Lines

Bob Lundquist, former W. H. S. basketball and baseball student under "Red" Swanson, has arrived home from Notre Dame University where he is enrolled and is taking active part in the school's baseball program. In relating some of the Notre Dame games so far this season, he tells of the encounter with Bob Feller's Great Lakes Naval Training team. Opposing the Irish on the mound was former St. Louis Brown Denny Galehouse, whom Lundquist says is a first class master of the game. He also states that Feller is no longer the great he was before entering the service. The former Cleveland ace is now a battle fatigue victim and has lost a lot of his old familiar punch.

Bob, the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Lundquist, Market street, has always had an ambition to play ball and, through a baseball scholarship, is getting his chance at Notre Dame. As soon as he completes his schooling, Bob hopes (Turn to Page Eight) of ceremonies and speechmaking may also lead to the speedy wind-up of another situation—the future of Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., as secretary of state.

In the American delegation and other diplomatic groups here there is considerable speculation that the president may indicate either publicly or privately his future plans for Stettinius before he leaves here tomorrow night.

A Big-Three meeting is close at hand, but it is another job, if Stettinius is to prepare for it, as secretary, he may want to know without delay. If Byrnes or someone else is going as secretary—with Stettinius possibly in some other capacity—that also will have to be decided without delay since the time is short.

Some members of the American delegation predict that since the secretary's part in the conference and the conference itself have ended in success, the president will be inclined to keep him on. This is in sharp contrast with predictions in Washington political quarters that he will be given a foreign assignment, as leading American official in the projected United States set up, and replaced as secretary.

Two months to the day after the conference opened on April 25, Mr. Truman arrives about 2:30 p. m. (P. W. T.) today at Hamilton Field from the Pacific northwest, where he has been vacationing.

Smutz Sees Improvement in Covenant
Because he stands as the principal living link between the men who created the League of Nations and those who drafted a new world order here, Smutz was asked by The Associated Press to write an analysis of the two and of the San Francisco conference itself.

The League Covenant was written, he said, at the world's "high tide in idealism." It was based on the idea, he said, that nations sitting at a round table could settle disputes peacefully "and organized force might not be necessary to prevent aggression."

Gen. Devers said the situation in Germany is so orderly that "we are thinking of taking arms away from a majority of those in the army of occupation. The Germans will obey when they know they have met their master, and they know we are their master now."

Six generals will be in the group arriving here. They are S. LeRoy Irwin, Washington; Edwin T. Parker, Jr., Warsaw, Ind.; Horace L. McBride, Elgin, Neb.; Frank A. Keating, New York; Milton A. Reckord, Zone, Md.; and William M. Hoge, assistant chief of staff.

'SKY' IS RESTORED
New York—(AP)—Those New Yorkers who don't have much chance to see the full panoply of the night heavens from the canyon-like streets of their home town are able once more to get a synthetic view. Illuminated starry skies spread across the vaulted ceiling of Grand Central Terminal, 118 feet above the grand concourse, have been re-painted for the first time in 32 years. It was a 10-month job.

Storm Lashes Carolina Capes
Charlotte, S. C., June 25—(AP)—The center of the tropical hurricane sweeping up the Atlantic seaboard from the Caribbean passed 40 miles east of here early today and swung northeastward parallel to Carolina's beach resort area.

The center of the storm was reported near Georgetown, S. C., at 10:30 a. m.

The weather bureau said the hurricane would skirt along the coast as it moved northeastward or night pass inland on Cape Fear. Dangerous winds and high tides are expected to attend its advance to the Virginia Capes and probably as far north as Atlantic City, N. J.

The weather bureau said the core of the storm would pass over or slightly east of the Carolina Capes this afternoon and that strong winds from gale to full hurricane force would be felt from north of here to Hatteras.

Precautions were advised along the beach resort area, now in the height of its summer season, and areas northward to Norfolk were urged by the weather bureau to stand by for frequent advisories.

Moving at about 20 miles an hour, the storm lashed across Florida early yesterday without causing any great damage and swung northeastward. It passed along the Georgia coast without incident but coastal cities and towns reported high winds and heavy rains.

Joyce Claims He Is U. S. Citizen
By W. W. HERCHER
London, June 25—(AP)—William Joyce's defense attorney entered a plea of innocent today to British charges of high treason, and indicated that the man who made war propaganda broadcasts for the Germans under the name of "Lord Haw Haw" would base his defense on a claim of American birth.

A preliminary hearing on the charges was adjourned until Thursday, when the court announced, Joyce will be committed formally for trial in Old Bailey during the July session.

Occupation Forces Named By Supreme Headquarters

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Paris, June 25—(P)—Assignments of 23 of the 61 American divisions under Gen. Eisenhower's command at the end of the war in Europe have been decided, leaving 5 with their future status unannounced, supreme headquarters said today.

Nine divisions have been given occupational roles.

Eleven have been selected for return to the United States (in the movement of combat forces for the Pacific war.)

Three have drawn rear echelon chores.

The latest to be earmarked for occupation duty are the 42nd and 63rd infantry divisions, which will take over northwestern Austria as long as military control there is necessary, it was learned at headquarters. The American zone in Austria presumably will come under Gen. Mark W. Clark.

In Germany the U. S. Third and Seventh armies, which ultimately will control the American zone of occupation, will have at least six divisions apportioned evenly between them. They will operate directly under army headquarters, with no corps organizations.

Gen. Patton's Third army, under present plans, will have the First and Ninth infantry and Fourth armored divisions.

Lt. Gen. Wade H. Haislip's Seventh Army will have the Third and 36th infantry and the First Armored Divisions. The First Armored Division fought in Italy.

The 82nd Airborne Division is expected to garrison the American zone in Berlin. The 28th Infantry Division will remain in its present location, the Bremen Port area.

The 28th Infantry Division area, in the Rhenish Palatinate, which may be assigned to French control. In that case, the 28th would be redeployed.

The 66th Division has been assigned to operate the Marseille staging area from which some troops will be shipped directly to the Pacific.

The 76th Division will operate an assembly area command where troops are processed for redeployment. The 106th Division, perhaps the worst mauled in the Ardennes offensive, will guard German prisoners remaining in American hands.

Divisions being returned to the United States for transfer to the Pacific are the Second, Fifth, 44th, 86th, 87th, 95th, 97th and 104th infantry and the 13th armored.

The Fourth and Eighth infantry divisions also are returning home, but whether they will go to the Pacific has not been announced.

The personnel of all divisions, regardless of their future assignment, is subject to change under the army's discharge point system, modified by military necessity and the availability of replacements.

All American Divisions slated for occupation duty are now in the tentative U. S. occupation zone. There are still a dozen American divisions in the zone to be occupied by the Russians, however. Two other divisions are in the British zone.

Those in territory indicated for Russian control are the 26th, 30th, 69th, 76th, 79th, 94th and 102nd infantry, and the Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth and 16th armored. Since these have not been assigned places in the occupation setup, they presumably are scheduled for redeployment.

The 35th infantry and Second Armored Divisions will be delayed from the British zone. The 35th now is west of the Rhine and the Second Armored, originally scheduled to go to Berlin, is in the Brunswick area.

Other divisions whose status have not been announced are the 45th, 63rd, 70th, 71st, 78th, 80th, 83rd, 84th, 89th, 90th, 99th, 100th, and 103rd infantry; the Third, Ninth, Tenth, 11th, 12th, 14th and 20th armored; and the 13th, 17th and 101st airborne.

to go into organized baseball, possibly accepting the contract offered him last summer by the Cleveland Indians.

A lot of credit is due the organizers of the newly-formed baseball team, especially having to contend with conditions such as they are. Equipment is more than scarce and it is almost impossible to get good balls, bats, shoes, and uniforms. The new crew, through the courtesy of Joe Gardner, will use the State Hospital uniforms and having scouted up enough balls and bats to get under way soon. Quite a number was at Russell Field last Wednesday to start getting the diamond in shape which is a job in itself. Not having been used in the last nine or ten months, the grass has gotten a good start in the infield and rain has washed away a lot of the topsoil. But with the fellows who are interested in the new team, you can expect more good baseball playing in Warren.

One of the most extensive stocking programs in this section was started last Thursday in the Kane area under the sponsorship of the Kane Fish and Game Club upon arrival there of 1,250 day-old ring-neck pheasant chicks, which will be raised until eight or twelve weeks old and then released in immediate Kane vicinity.

PHIL'S FLAHER BREAKS LEG

Philadelphia, June 25—(P)—The downtrodden Phillies suffered another body blow yesterday when Wally Flager, acquired this month from the Cincinnati Reds and the brightest star in the Phils Steve-Like infield, suffered a possible broken leg rounding third in the ninth inning of the first of two against the New York Giants.

Just how long Flager will be lost to the Phils will be determined when an x-ray is taken today. Glen Crawford, utility infielder-outfielder, returned to the shortstop post in yesterday's nightcap.

CONFIDENT FELLOW

Philadelphia, June 25—(P)—Ike Williams, who lost to Willie Joyce of Gary, Ind., in his only bout since capturing the NBA lightweight boxing title, may find himself in for a turbulent night tomorrow, his opponent, Philadelphia's Gene Burton, says.

"Without his K. O. wallop, he's just another fighter," Burton says, and he feels he can stay out of the Trenton, N. J., lightweight's reach long enough to win a decision in the non-title encounter. Burton has added Mickey Walker of Rumson, N. J., former welterweight and middle-weight titlist, to his retinue of advisers.

OTT BENCHES SELF

Philadelphia, June 25—(P)—Manager Mel Ott of the New York Giants benched himself in the second game of yesterday's double-header with the Philadelphia Phillies for the first time this season.

Ott, who was hitting .341, went hitless in five trips to the plate in the first game and has been in a hitting slump since the Giants came to Philadelphia Friday, Jim Mallory, former University of North Carolina football star and more recently of the St. Louis Cardinals, filled in at right field.
